Preface

Dear potential ACIIA member,

This booklet aims to summarise the basic information you need to understand the objectives and functions of ACIIA, and the role that the member societies play therein. It answers the most frequently asked questions of potential members and contains excerpts from more complete documents such as the ACIIA Articles of Association, the ACIIA Byelaws, the ACIIA Rules and Regulations and the ACIIA Operations Guide.

If you have any queries of any kind, or would like to apply for membership, please do not hesitate to contact the ACIIA Secretary Services (info@aciia.org). We would be happy to provide you with any additional information and documents that you may require, such as member contracts, the ACIIA Articles of Association, etc.

We look forward to the possibility of working with you in the future.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION

ACIIA Goals and Structure

ACIIA is a non-profit international association established in 2000, based on a network of national/regional member societies (hereinafter “national societies”) which represent investment professionals in their respective countries and regions.

The objective of ACIIA is to provide an internationally recognised, advanced professional qualification, Certified International Investment Analyst (CIIA®). To this end, ACIIA continuously reviews the quality and the relevance of the CIIA examination and the CIIA training materials.

ACIIA considers professional competence and ethics as the two key pillars underlying investment analysts’ activities worldwide. It also places an emphasis on investment analysts’ independence from any external undue pressures which could impair their objectivity.

ACIIA recognises the governing role of national societies in their own countries/regions – irrespective of their size or the development stage of their local markets. This recognition of national/regional sovereignty is a key factor which differentiates ACIIA from other similar associations. Its policy to respect the cultural and regulatory aspects of each country/region helps investment analysts better understand local factors which would affect investment decisions and thus minimise the risk of these decisions being taken on the basis of wrong or incorrect views or perceptions. The cultural and regulatory aspects of each country/region are incorporated into a national specific examination coverage in addition to the common and global aspects that are examined.

ACIIA relies on national societies for the development and enhancement of the CIIA designation and expects both the examination administration and training programmes to be managed by national societies in their countries and regions.

ACIIA members consist of federations and national societies which are currently as follows:

1 federation: The European Federation of Financial Analysts Societies (EFFAS)

22 national societies: Those of Argentina, Austria, Belgium, Brazil, China, Chinese Taipei, France, Germany, Greece, Hong Kong, Italy, Japan, Kenya, Korea, Nigeria, Poland, Romania, Russia, Spain, Switzerland, Tunisia and Vietnam.

In addition, expressions of interest are coming from several organisations which are considering ways in participation in ACIIA in the future.

To date, 41 CIIA examination sessions have been held and the exams will continue to take place every 6 months. Over 19,200 candidates have registered for the examinations thus far, and over 10,100 candidates have passed the CIIA Final Level Examination.

Unique Characteristics of the CIIA® Diploma

Structure

CIIA is designed to combine a globally applicable common knowledge base with expertise in local regulations and market practices. To be awarded the CIIA designation, candidates must pass two levels of International Common Knowledge Examination (Foundation Level and Final Level) covering 7 topic areas and a National Examination; they must have the year(s) of working experience as required by the national society; and they must be a member of a national society to ensure compliance with its code of ethics and professional conduct worthy of being a holder of the CIIA certificate.

- International Common Knowledge Examination:

Foundation Level: Basic knowledge and understanding of the 7 topic areas. This is delegated to the Swiss Foundation Examination of SFAA (Swiss Financial Analysts Association). Alternatively, it can be replaced by the examinations of national societies accredited by ACIIA.

Final Level: In depth knowledge and practical application of that knowledge in the 7 topic areas. This is centrally offered by ACIIA.

7 topic areas

- Financial Accounting and Financial Statement Analysis
 - Corporate Finance
 - Equity valuation and Analysis
 - Economics
 - Fixed Income Valuation and Analysis
 - Derivative Valuation and Analysis
 - Portfolio Management
- National Examination: The areas set by national societies covering regulations, ethics, financial statement analysis and market structures and investments. This is conducted by national societies with the relevant exchange of information and review by ACIIA.

The candidates, who have passed the Foundation Level Examination in 3 units (Foundation 1, Foundation 2 and Foundation 3) or the examinations of national societies accredited by ACIIA, can sit for the Final Level Examination. It is also possible to enrol for the Final Level Examination directly through the EQC (Experienced Qualified Candidates) scheme if national societies adopt this scheme in accordance with the ACIIA Byelaw.

The Final Level Examination is centrally provided by ACIIA twice a year (March and September) and conducted by national societies at their cost. It is split in 2 units (Final 1 and Final 2).

To summarise, there are three different routes to obtain the CIIA qualification.

- Route A: National + Foundation + Final
- Route B: Accredited programme + Final
- Route C: EQC + Final

Examination languages

Although a significant proportion of financial literature is in English, candidates perform at their best in examinations when they can use their mother tongue. The 11 recognised languages are Chinese, English, French, German, Italian, Japanese, Korean, Polish, Portuguese, Russian and Spanish – and more languages will be approved as the demand increases. The cost of offering the Foundation/Final Level Examinations in a language other than English is borne by national societies.

Operations

ACIIA commissions AZEK (Swiss Training Centre for Investment Professionals) which was established by SFAA in 1990 to operate the Final Level Examination as the CIE (Centre for the International Examinations). The roles assigned to AZEK include data administration from enrolments to examination results, creation of examination question papers, and setting pass marks under the supervision of the IEC (International Examinations Committee) of ACIIA.

Training programme

The training programmes for the different levels are under the responsibility of national societies with some guidance from ACIIA:

- (1) A national society is free to organise a training programme with the relevant mix of physical and distance sessions. The national society can organise itself with its own tools to help its candidates prepare for the different examination levels.
- (2) For that purpose, ILPIP (International Learning Platform for Investment Professionals) offers the course manuals (textbooks) for the Foundation/Final Level Examination. ILPIP also offers e-CIIA which is a package of the course manuals and lecture films for the CIIA Foundation/Final Level Examination. The course manuals and e-CIIA are available for non-ILPIP member societies for a fee.
- (3) For the National Examination, a national society which establishes the examination needs to submit the programme to ACIIA for accreditation. Training and examination could be organised either at the national society's training centre or in agreement with academic organisations such as universities.

MEMBERSHIP

ACIIA, for the purpose of registration, is declared to consist of an unlimited number of members. There are 4 types of membership:

- Federation Members
- Contracting Members
- Associate Members
- Individual Members

The ACIIA Council or a committee of the Council, consisting of not less than three Council Members, consider applications for membership. In the case of rejection, no reason shall be given therefore.

Federation Members

The European Federation of Financial Analysts Societies and any federation of societies of investment professionals in the region other than Europe shall be eligible for admission as Federation Members, provided that such federations have signed a contract of becoming a Federation Member with the Association.

Federation Members are eligible for appointment as members of the Council of ACIIA and have the right to attend and vote at Council Meetings/General Meetings.

Contracting Members

Contracting membership is open to national/regional societies of investment professionals that are either: a member society of the aforementioned Federation Members, or, a properly constituted society or federation of such societies (but not a member society of the aforesaid Federation Member).

Contracting Members commit to providing candidates for the CIIA examinations and also have their own examination programme as required by the Byelaws, the content of which must be accredited by ACIIA when becoming a Contracting Member.

Contracting Members are eligible for appointment as members of the Council of ACIIA and have the right to attend and vote at Council Meetings/General Meetings.

Associate Members

National/regional societies of investment professionals which are interested in or want to support CIIA but, for the time being, are not able to become Contracting Members, can apply for and become Associate Members at any time, provided that such societies have their own examination programmes, the content of which should be accredited by ACIIA when becoming an Associate Member.

Associate Members do not have the right to vote at any General Meeting, nor take part in the Council. An Associate Member cannot attend any General Meeting unless an Associate Member is invited by the Council to attend as an observer on a specific agenda item.

Individual Members

With the launch of the ACIIA Learning Platform in 2021, ACIIA has introduced Individual Membership in order to deal with those CIIA candidates or designation holders who need to belong directly to ACIIA due to the fact that there is no ACIIA member society in countries/regions where they reside.

Individual Members do not have the right to vote at any General Meeting and cannot attend any General Meeting or Council Meeting.

Role of the National Societies

As described in Article 14 of the ACIIA Rules and Regulations, the role of the national societies is as follows:

- (1) National societies which are members of ACIIA and which contract with it to provide candidates for the CIIA examinations shall nominate the person(s) representing them and responsible for liaison with ACIIA/IEC and other ACIIA member societies.
- (2) The terms of reference of the national societies with regard to the CIIA examinations are as follows:
 - a) to decide on admission/rejection of candidates for the CIIA examinations and to inform ACIIA of candidate names in due time;
 - b) to arrange a suitable venue for sitting the international (common) examinations as well as national (specific) examination in their own country/region;
 - c) to establish a precise description of national topics to be included in the national (specific) examination;
 - d) to organise the preparation of national specific papers and their marking;
 - e) to prepare and send a report concerning the content and organisation of the national (specific) examination to the IEC for its review and accreditation;
 - f) to prepare and send a report concerning the content and organisation of the national programmes to the IEC for its review and accreditation to the effect that their candidates who have successfully passed the related examinations may proceed directly to the Final Level Examination;
 - g) to send the results of the national (specific) examination to the IEC for forwarding to ACIIA; and
 - h) to examine the complaints of candidates.
- (3) The national societies are required to accept experts from the IEC (or their appointees) to examine the national examination arrangements, to make all records freely available, and to answer all connected questions.

MEMBERSHIP FEES

There are 2 kinds of fees, Entrance Fee and Annual Membership Fees.

1. Entrance Fee

(1) Federation Members and Contracting Members

CHF 8,000

(2) Associate Members

CHF 1,200

The balance (CHF 6,800) of CHF 8,000 minus CHF 1,200 has to be paid when an Associate Member shifts its status to a Contracting Member.

2. Annual Membership Fees

(1) Federation Members

CHF 10,000 as fixed fee

(2) Contracting Members

Fixed minimum fee, plus Variable fee if the total number of enrolled exam units for the year exceeds the number of exam units corresponding to the fixed minimum fee.

Fixed minimum fee

CHF 10,000 or CHF 20,000 depending on the number of CIIA holders of the Contracting Member as in Table 1 below.

Table 1. Fixed minimum fee of Contracting Members

Number of CIIA holders (Note)	Fixed minimum fee
0 - 299	CHF 10,000	Corresponding to 50 exam units applying CHF 200 as unit price
300 -	CHF 20,000	Corresponding to 100 exam units applying CHF 200 as unit price

Note: The cumulative number of the successful candidates of the Contracting Member, who have passed both units of the CIIA Final Exam as of 31 December of the previous year.

ACIIA issues an invoice for the fixed minimum fee to Contracting Members in March.

Variable fee

(the total number of enrolled exam units for March and September exam sessions - the fixed minimum fee/CHF 200) x (the unit price as in Table 2 below)

Table 2. Unit price applied to Contracting Members

Total number of enrolled exam units for the year	Unit price
0 - 999	CHF 150
1,000 -	CHF 120

ACIIA issues an invoice for the variable fee to Contracting Members in September as soon as the total number of enrolled exam units for the year is available.

(3) Associate Members

Fixed minimum fee, plus Variable fee if the total number of enrolled exam units for the year exceeds 10.

Fixed minimum fee

CHF 2,000 (corresponding to 10 exam units applying CHF 200 as unit price)

ACIIA issues an invoice of the fixed minimum fee to Associate Members in March.

Variable fee

(the total number of enrolled exam units for March and September exam sessions - 10) x (the unit price of CHF 200)

ACIIA issues an invoice for the variable fee to Associate Members in September as soon as the total number of enrolled exam units for the year is available.

(4) Individual Members

The amount of the fixed fee as determined from time to time by the ACIIA Byelaw is a nominal fee to maintain the name of the Individual Member in the list of CIIA designation holders on the ACIIA website and to use the CIIA designation.

ACIIA issues an invoice for the fixed fee to Individual Members in March.

More details are provided in the ACIIA Byelaw on Terms and Conditions of Fee Commitment.

CONDITIONS FOR CANDIDATE ADMISSION

The examinations are open to anyone working in the domain of financial analysis, portfolio management, and investment in general, in conjunction with the following provisions:

- National societies may decide candidacy requirements according to local conditions, which may include candidates having a local membership status in good standing, a university degree or equivalent in professional work experience, possessing civil rights, etc.
- As the ACIIA Learning Platform was launched in 2021 for CIIA candidates in countries/regions without a national society, such candidates can take the examinations directly offered by ACIIA through participating in the ACIIA Learning Platform.

Enrolment Procedures

Candidates wishing to enrol for the examinations shall submit enrolment forms, prepared by ACIIA, to the relevant national society. Certain credentials (e.g., a reference or a certificate attesting to previous professional experience) may be requested at the time of enrolment either by a national society or the International Examinations Committee (IEC), details of which shall appear in examination announcements. If the national society decides not to accept an application for enrolment for whatever reason, the decision shall be forwarded to the applicant in writing and also to the IEC.

Examination Fees

Examination fees shall be paid by candidates to a national society (through which they submitted the application for enrolment) a certain period before sitting the examination as decided by the national society.

Each national society may determine its policy on examination fees and payment/reimbursement according to local conditions provided its annual membership fee commitment to ACIIA is fulfilled.

“Experienced Qualified Candidate” (EQC) Scheme:

ACIIA recognises that there is a pool of practicing finance and investment professionals who have a wealth of experience but lack professional qualifications. To give such professionals the opportunity to participate in the CIIA examinations, ACIIA has introduced an Experienced Qualified Candidate Scheme.

Experienced Qualified Candidates (EQCs) must become the members of ACIIA societies in good standing and who are deemed to have sufficient knowledge/skills based on factors such as years of experience in the profession of investment analysis (but they need not have passed any national examination). Each ACIIA member society may set EQC requirements according to local conditions, but which should include a minimum of one year’s professional work experience prior to being awarded the CIIA designation (each ACIIA member society determines the actual required year(s) of working experience as is considered appropriate in its country/region).

- (i) EQCs have to pass CIIA exams within three years from their registration.
- (ii) EQCs have the same rights and obligations as regular candidates under the Rules and Regulations.
- (iii) In the case of a special course for university graduates, candidates have a master's degree or higher.

As an alternative to the EQC scheme, some ACIIA member societies might prefer an exemption policy such as one based on a special course for university graduates with a master's degree or higher, etc. While such alternatives could probably be considered, it would be very difficult to give clear guidelines to national societies in a unified way for granting exemptions since so much would differ from society to society.

Thus, each ACIIA member society could study the possibility and decide a special case at its discretion, PROVIDED THAT the quality of candidates would not be adversely affected due to such exemption.

EQCs who successfully pass the CIIA exams can obtain and use the CIIA designation so long as he/she is a member of an ACIIA member society which has a code of ethics and professional conduct in place, thus ensuring he/she is worthy of being a holder of the CIIA designation.

The ACIIA Council Meeting held on 29 June 2017 approved the adoption of the EQC (Experienced Qualified Candidate) Scheme on a permanent basis.

ACCREDITATION OF NATIONAL DIPLOMAS

Role of the International Examinations Committee (IEC)

The IEC is composed of six to nine members. They are either university professors or expert practitioners with relevant skills. Members of the IEC are appointed by ACIIA for a period of three years after which the appointment may be renewed. The Chair of IEC is independent of any member society of ACIIA in his/her role and is appointed by ACIIA for a period of three years after which the appointment may be renewed.

The role of the IEC is:

- to establish and update the Common Knowledge Base and Examination Syllabus;
- to prepare and publish an Examinations Guide for the reference of candidates;
- to establish detailed rules and guidelines concerning the examination setting and marking process based on the framework of the examinations as set forth in the Rules and Regulations, and to organise and manage the overall examination process in accordance with such guidelines;
- to prepare the international (common) examination papers in due time;
- to oversee the marking of the international (common) examination papers and make sure it is completed in such a manner as to ensure rigour and uniformity;
- to determine the languages used in the examination papers;
- to review and accredit the content and organisation of national (specific) examinations, and the content and organisation of the national societies' programmes whereby candidates who have successfully passed the related examinations may proceed directly to the Final Level Examination

Applying for approval of the national programme/diploma

Candidates who are the members of an ACIIA member society, whose education/examination programme is accredited by the International Examinations Committee of ACIIA, may proceed directly to the CIIA Final Level examination. Accreditation of a national society's education/examination programme is given if the coverage, depth and quality of the programme (including teaching materials as well as examination questions) are considered to be at sufficient levels by the IEC review.

The criteria for accreditation of a national programme/diploma are:

- The society's programme should have at least 12 hours examination time in total;
- The majority of 7 topic areas should be covered; and
- When reviewing the programmes which meet the above two criteria, the IEC assess the syllabi and examination papers to ensure that the coverage is commensurate with the Foundation Level of the CIIA designation.

See appendix 1 (Application form for accreditation of a national diploma) for further details.

Accreditation of the national specific examination

All Contracting Members and Associate Members of ACIIA must have a national specific examination that is accredited by the IEC.

The criteria for accreditation are:

- The national specific examination should comprise at least 3 hours examination time.
- National specific areas such as market structure, regulation, accounting and financial instruments should be covered in the programme.
- The examination papers and syllabi are reviewed to ensure that the coverage of the material is at appropriate levels.

See appendix 2 (Application form for approval of a National Specific Examination) for further details.

ADMINISTRATION SYSTEMS

Coordinating the CIIA examinations around the globe in 13 languages, as a decentralised organisation, presents an enormous administrative challenge. This challenge demands not only good systems, but also a high level of cooperation among all ACIIA national societies. For this reason, we maintain an Operations Guide that provides national societies with information to increase their understanding of the functions of ACIIA, and more pertinently, the role they play therein. It is a practical supplement to the ACIIA Rules and Regulations and explains the responsibilities of national societies for every ACIIA procedure: from candidate enrolment and provision of examination questions, to marking of examination papers and distribution of the examination results.

To facilitate the ACIIA procedures, we use a flexible and sophisticated software system called the EAS (Examination Administration Software). This tool enables the rapid exchange of essential data between the ACIIA's CIE (Centre for International Examinations) and all national societies. For example, national societies use the EAS to store candidate registration information; provide candidate enrolment information to the CIE; and enter results into the database. The CIE in turn uses the EAS to announce the examination schedules; set the papers; analyse and check the results data entered by national societies; make statistical analyses of the results; and coordinate and check all procedures.

Conclusion

From the very outset of the CIIA project, there has been an excellent spirit of skill sharing and cooperation among national societies. Some have collaborated on the production of training materials for their candidates; others have shared their CIIA marketing resources. ACIIA Council meetings are held at least twice a year to discuss the development of their operations in order to keep abreast of the changing demands of the professions that they represent.

ACIIA is in a phase of great momentum and we look forward to the challenges ahead. We have a strong belief in the philosophy and objectives of our association, and the quality of the CIIA designation. We would be pleased to welcome you to the ACIIA team.
